MAXWELL GIRL CONVICTED IN FATHER'S DEATH

20-YEAR PRISON TERM PROVIDED BY 'HILL' JURY

Verdict Is Second Naming Teacher as Murderess in Second Degree

LATE DATE QUARREL FATAL

State Charges High-Heeled Shoe or Iron Used

WISE, Va., Dec. 17 — (UP) — A jury of 12 southwest Virginia tradesmen and farmers today found Edith Maxwell guilty of second degree murder of her father, Trigg Maxwell. The jury fixed Edith's penalty at 20 years in prison.

The jury had been formally deliberating the case since 9 a. m. It was the second time that the youthful Edith had been found guilty of the murder of her father. The first time the jury recommended a 25-year sentence in prison. The verdict and trial set aside by Virginia's Supreme Court of Appeals.

The state charged Edith killed her father during a quarrel over a "late date".

90 Minutes Required

The jury required only 90 minutes to reach its verdict in the second trial.

As it was deliberating Edith, pale but composed, sat quietly in the little Wise county courtroom with members of her family.

Defense Counsel A. T. Dotson prepared immediately to ask Judge Ezra T. Carter for the release of the youthful one time Virginia schoolmistress on bond, pending an appeal of the second conviction.

Whether the young girl whose case has aroused national interest would be given her freedom on bond was uncertain. After her first conviction, Judge A. A. Skeen refused to release her on bond until after the court of appeals set aside the verdict.

The decision of the 12 man jury marked the failure of the vigorously fought defense which had contended that the state failed even to show that Maxwell had been murdered.

Struck on Head

The defense charged that Maxwell's death might have been caused by a heart attack. The state argued that Edith killed her father with a blow on the head, inflicted with one of her high-heeled slippers or possibly with an electric iron.

EXPLOSION KILLS ONE, HURTS FIVE; INQUIRY STARTS

Hubert Catchpole, Brother of Mrs. John Dearth, Crushed by Bricks

BLAST CAUSE MYSTERY

Columbus Filling Station Scene of Disaster

Columbus firemen, police and state fire officials Thursday sought to learn the cause of two explosions Wednesday night which wrecked a service station at Fulton and Second streets, killing Hubert Catchpole, 27, station employee and brother of Mrs. John Dearth, Pickaway township, and injuring five persons.

Catchpole was burned to death when trapped in a rear room of the station. Employees injured were Lewis Hoover, 18, fractured right leg, cuts and bruises; Walter Herron, 39, George Kronk, 21 and Arthur Goldberg, station manager, cuts and bruises, and Charles Heill, 39, a customer, fractured toe and bruises.

Storage Room Scene

The explosion was believed to have occurred in a room in which oil was stored. Underground gasoline tanks did not explode. The explosion shook windows and walls a block from the station.

The body of Catchpole was found under tons of brick and twisted steel in the wreckage. Firemen worked more than two hours to put out the flames that followed the explosion.

Catchpole is survived by his widow, Pearl, a one-year-old son, James; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Catchpole; a brother, Bedford, all of Columbus, and two sisters, Ruth, at home, and Mrs. Dearth.

Mrs. Dearth went to Columbus, Thursday morning.

MOTOR INDUSTRY IS HINDERED BY STRIKE SERIES

BY UNITED PRESS

Machines and assembly lines providing work for approximately 28,000 men in America's glass and auto parts factories were idle today as booming automobile plants faced a creeping paralysis of sit-down and stay-in strikes in the feeder industries.

Geographically, the strikes spread from Michigan, in the north to Georgia, in the south, and west to Kansas City. Each threatened discontinuance of assembly operations in the great plants of the major manufacturers, for halted was the flow to the automobile centers of wheels, window glass, seat cushions and floor coverings, aluminum piston heads, window frames, motors and even bodies.

The labor weapon was wielded by the United Automobile Workers of America and the Flat Glass Workers, both affiliated with the potent committee for industrial organization and recently united under a mutual agreement pact. Heads of the two unions and John L. Lewis of the CIO, planned a conference in Washington today at which the strategy will be discussed.

FIREMEN PETITION FOR RESTORATION OF $10 PAY CUT

Firemen believe the $10 per month pay cut they took in 1933 should be restored to them.

Members of the department sent a petition to council Wednesday night making their appeal. It was referred to the safety committee.

"In view of the rising cost of living, we, as members of the fire department feel that we should have the cut in wages back to meet the increased costs of living," the petition says. "We, as firemen, receive less and put in more hours per week than any of the city employees. We received this cut in 1933."

The petition was signed by Chief Talmer Wise, Clinton Strawser, T. A. Strawser, Ray Anderson and Robert Wolf.

MAYOR IS TOLD TO END LOAFING IN CITY'S HALL

Loafing in the front hall of the city building is out.

Councilmen instructed Mayor W. J. Graham to issue orders to keep loafers out of the hall. Practically all councilmen said they had received complaints about the condition and wanted it corrected at once.

The condition was brought up in council by Harry Steinhauser, a member of the health committee. Mr. Steinhauser reported also arrangements had been made by the committee with school officials to provide shoes for needy children.

10 CHARGES PUT BEFORE JURORS, OPENING CONFAB

The county grand jury went into session shortly before 10 a. m. Thursday.

Ray W. Davis, prosecutor, said some last minute cases had been filed raising the number listed for consideration to about ten. He estimated about 20 witnesses would be questioned and the jury would complete its work in one day.

Due to scaffolding in the common pleas courtroom for redecorating, the jury met in the law library.

All cases before the jury are on transcripts, Davis said.

Brisk Wind Sweeps Fog From Utah Mountain, Scene of Hunt

CCC LEADER FINDS CLUE

Sheared Trees, Scarred Rock Ledge May Lead to Seven

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 17 — (UP) — Rescue parties assembled before dawn today to resume their search for a missing Western Air express airliner as a brisk south wind swept out a fog that had covered Utah for more than 24 hours and snow storms high in the Wasatch mountains subsided to intermittent flurries.

Airport officials said the wind had cleared visibility to 2,000 feet and flying conditions would continue to improve.

Mechanics readied four planes to take off at dawn for lone peak and lofty Mt. Timpanogas, 40 miles south of here, where the airliner was believed to have crashed with its seven passengers. There was little hope that the occupants were still alive.

The plane was more than 48 hours overdue.

Superintendent John I. Hess of a Civil Conservation Corps will lead one of the groups to the place 11,000 feet up Lone Peak where yesterday he discovered sheared trees and a scarred rock ledge where he believed the big airliner swooped low, then plunged over into a deep gorge.

"It seems impossible that the ship could have survived the crash which must have occurred when it struck a small ledge and (Continued on Page Twelve.)"

The survey was made to determine whether the utility will purchase the utility.

'Good Night' Hymn on Chimes Advised To Replace Fire Bell as City Curfew

Councilmen are seeking a curfew unless council sees fit. A suitable bell they may use a whistle or adopt a "good-night hymn."

Fire Chief Talmer Wise sent to the city dads Wednesday night informing them he did not like the idea of ringing the fire bell for the curfew. "On several occasions the ringing of the fire bell for the curfew has conflicted with fire calls," the chief wrote.

"In the interest of safety for all concerned some other means should be used for the curfew. If someone should pull a box at the time the curfew was ringing the firemen would not know where the call originated. For that reason I do not want to take the risk of ringing the fire bell for a curfew unless council sees fit."

Whistle, Chimes Considered

The letter from the fire chief brought on a lengthy discussion among members. There was a recommendation the Container Corporation blow its whistle, or the chimes in the courthouse be used.

"I don't think the curfew does any good, anyway," Councilman Frank Marion said. "It always seems to me like they are burying someone. What we should do is adopt a "good-night hymn."

Councilmen learned there is an old market bell owned by the city, but they wondered if it would be loud enough for a curfew. The curfew bell used years ago was given to the A.M.E. church. Where to put a bell was the

EDWARD TO ACT ST. NICK ROLE FOR VILLAGERS

ENZESFELD, Austria, Dec. 17 — (UP) — Edward, Duke of Windsor, is going to play Santa Claus for the children of Enzesfeld, it was understood today, in the traditional red suit and white beard of the patron of the Christmas feast.

Baroness Eugene Rothschild, hostess of the recent king-emperor, has drafted him, because of his popularity with children, to assist as Santa Claus in the distribution of presents at the Christmas party she will give for all the children of the village.

The party is an annual one and the duke is assured of a full attendance.

But the first formal engagement of Edward VIII as he seeks seclusion here is expected to be as guest of honor at the 86th birthday party of Mrs. Jane Kent Saturday.

Mrs. Kent is one of a circle of British horse trainers and gardeners whom the Rothschild family brought to Austria many years ago to take charge of their racing stables and introduce a new form of landscape gardening to their estate.

Mrs. Kent invited the duke to be her guest of honor at her birthday party at the cottage she shares with the family's present trainer and his family.

JOB INSURANCE BILL APPROVED IN 92-21 TALLY

Bitter Personal Clashes Precede Vote in House Wednesday Evening

DISTRIBUTION QUESTIONED

School Leaders Displeased With 60 to 40 Division

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17 — (UP) — Ohio's unemployment insurance bill required only Gov. Martin L. Davey's signature today to become law as the house reconvened to push through the administration's $68,000,000 taxation program.

By a vote of 92 to 19, the house late yesterday approved senate amendments to the bill after a stormy session marked by frequent bitter clashes.

The firework started when Rep. Sydney A. Hesse, D., Cuyahoga, supported a proposal of Rep. Arthur Hamilton, R., Warren, to send the bill to a conference committee of the house and senate to "iron out the wrinkles."

"All this is a phony set-up," replied Rep. Lody Huml, D., Cuyahoga, "and the only purpose of a conference committee is to keep the house here until this slimy pussy footery tax program is pushed down our throats. The committee already is selected and the whole deal was cooked up in a hotel room."

Jumping to his feet, Rep. Hesse shouted:

"If he is questioning my integrity or connecting me with any such plan, Mr. Huml is a liar. I make no apology to the house for using this word."

Earlier in the session, W. H. Wheaton, D., Lawrence, said he considered a charge by Rep. E. R. King, R., Vinton, that the bill was "advocated by the Lenins and Trotsky's" as a "personal insult."

Urging immediate action were Grant P. Ward, R., Franklin, and Robert F. Kaser, D., Shelby.

"We would be jeopardizing the whole bill if we sent it back to a pushed down our throats. The (Continued on Page Twelve.)"

MERCHANTS HIT REMOVAL OF OLD FIRE BOX NO. 12

Many downtown business men are opposed to the removal of the removal of fire box No. 12 from the corner of Court and Main streets, council learned Wednesday.

The old box was recently moved to N. Pickaway street near Berger hospital and a new box No. 47 installed on the main corner. Councilmen were told the old box required only six seconds to register the alarm at the department while the new one requires 18 seconds. There are no indicators on the alarm system, firemen said, and they must wait for the first round on the fire bell to determine the location of the call.

Councilman Harry Steinhauser, who urged the purchase of the new box, was instructed by council to work out the problem.

The postmaster urged, also, that one and one-half cent stamps be purchased in blocks of even numbers to expedite work at the stamp windows.

Printed Christmas cards, unsealed and with no writing in them, can be sent anywhere in the United States for one and one-half cents.

There will be no mail delivery Christmas day, so postal employees too, may enjoy the day.

The songs are "Believe Me If

1937 FARMERS' WEEK WILL BE AN ANNIVERSARY

Meeting Jan. 25 to 29 to Mark Twenty-Fifth of Series in State

RAMSOWER IN CHARGE

Attendance Record Sought by University

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17 — Farmers' Week at Ohio State University, January 25 to 29, will be the 25th anniversary of this important meeting for farmers and persons interested in the agriculture of this state.

One of the feature spots on the program, if plans succeed, will be a talk by A. B. Graham, now in charge of extension specialists for the United States Department of Agriculture, but who was first director of extension work in the state. As director here, he helped arrange the first Farmers' Week.

Director H. C. Ramsower is much interested in finding out how many Ohio farmers have attended every Farmers' Week in the 25 years and asks those who have been at the university each year to write to him. A letter or postcard directed to Director H. C. Ramsower, agricultural extension service, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, to tell him about such attendance records will be greatly appreciated.

The anniversary program will be similar in its main features to those preceding it. Farm women will have a series of meetings especially planned for them by the home economics department. The afternoon general assembly hours will be at 4 p. m., and the evening assembly is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Entertainment will be provided in the form of music and drama, and there will be three evenings of old-time dancing, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Some of the talks during the afternoon assembly will be illustrated by motion pictures or slides. These have been a very popular feature.

COMMITTEE MEETS TO PLAN SOILS PROGRAM

Field Men Gather Thursday to Prepare for Better Balanced System

ELMER KRUSE IN CHARGE

Payments to be Provided for State Farmers

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17 — Agricultural conservation plans for 1937 in Ohio are being discussed at a meeting in Columbus, December 17 and 18.

The Columbus meeting is for field men and committeemen who aided in the 1936 program. The plan proposed for 1937 is quite similar to that for the year before and its goal is to bring a better balanced and more profitable system of farming.

Elmer K. Kruse, state chairman, states, "The general outlines of the 1937 program are like that of 1936, with changes recommended by farmers, designed to better meet farm conditions. Payments will be made to farmers who meet specified conditions for shifting up to 15 per cent of the acreage in their soil-depleting bases from soil-depleting to soil-conserving uses, and for carrying out approved practices. The soil-depleting base for each particular farm will be the starting point for measuring payments."

"Because of the widespread destruction by drought of established stands and new seedlings of soil-conserving crops, the program is designed to encourage increases in soil-conserving crops and permits the planting of emergency pasture and hay crops to replace those destroyed by the 1936 drought. Farmers whose soil-conserving crops were entirely destroyed will have an opportunity to qualify for full payment by matching acres shifted from soil depleting uses with seedlings of soil-conserving crops."

Room One

Mrs. Zimmerman, Teacher

Attendance in this room has kept up remarkably well thus far. Percentage of attendance for the first six weeks was 98.3 for the second six weeks 97.74.

Those in the A section of the first grade are now reviewing their book one in reading. All in this class are exceptionally good readers. They are also exceptional in their number work and writing. The group are all coming along nicely. Honor roll students in the first grade are, Wanda Lee Grimsley, Robert Hamilton, James Baney, Ruth Ellen Beauman, Elmer Ann Stage and Joyce Carter.

The second grade, after reviewing book one at the opening of school, and having some supplementary reading, is doing well in their book two. We have been dramatizing some of the stories, which makes it very interesting for them.

Honor roll students in grade two are Marjorie Fosnaugh, Naomi Pfifer, Arthur Dick, George Terfingler, Marilyn Massie, Gordon Davis and Dicky Lugenbeel.

Room II—Marjorie Arbogast. We now have 44 pupils in this room. Myrtle Puckett, Matthew Downs, and Mary Frances and Albert Stage have entered this month.

The honor roll for the third grade includes: Helen Conley, Grace Roberts, Patsy Nance, Eleanor Riley, Jo Ann Van Pelt, and Bob Hatfield. The second grade: Norma Jean Wright, Mildred Furniss, Jim Carter, Leola Brigner and Clarence Longberry.

Bob Hatfield, Helen Conley, Mildred Furniss, and Maribelle Smith received 100 in spelling every day last month.

Much improvement in writing is shown since we have our new writing pads.

The third grade made wooden spears in connection with the study of the cave people.

Birthday booklets were made while studying the months. Under each month we wrote the names of the boys or girls whose birthdays come in that month.

Two new bookcases with brown and white polka-dot drapes add to the appearance of our room. We have started four little geraniums. The children enjoy watching for the tiny leaves.

Some of the boys and girls brought pennies from home which we used to join the Red Cross.

Room IV—Miss Hanawalt

I The honor roll for the sixth grade this six weeks is: Marjorie Massie, Georgianna Hott, Helen Graves and Elsie Collins.

II The honor roll for the fifth grade is Hilda Rose Ogle and Inez Williams.

III Those having perfect attendance this six weeks are Thomas Riley, Roger Smith, Luella

OLD TEDDY BEAR WADDLING BACK THIS CHRISTMAS

NEW YORK (UP)—The old-fashioned teddy bear, which has resisted all ultra-modern streamlining tendencies, is staging a comeback this Christmas. The stuffed animal kingdom in toyland, however, is donated by dogs, with a sprinkling of non-political elephants and donkeys.

In marked contrast to the unchanging teddy bear are the 1936 model dolls, designed by sculptors, with real hair and fingernails. Blonde curls are more popular than brunette tresses, and the "redheads" are gaining in favor. Style dictates have been observed in the latest doll wardrobes displayed at the Toy Center here. Fur coats are shown in the current flared, high collar styles, with matching fur hats. Models appear for every social occasion from tea to skiing.

Doll voices have become clearer this year. Manufacturers say they are proof against laryngitis. A new style walking doll, without windup machinery, makes its debut, as do smiling and pouting dolls.

Toyland hasn't forgotten the quintuplets this year, but the counterparts of the famous babies have grown into toddler clothes. Haircuts add to the "growing up" effect.

Counts, Glenn Ingman, Elsie Collins, Marjorie Nance, Robert Pearl, Janice Leiston, Bobby Hildenbrand, Charles Counts, Fred Call, Betty Smith, Junior Pearl, Mildred Huston, Florence Brigner, Cora Lee Austin, Hilda Rose Ogle, Paul Tarbill, and Helen Huston.

III The enrollment of this room at the present time is seventeen boys and twenty-three girls.

IV The members of both grades wish to thank the school board for the set of maps which they purchased for the room some time ago. They are of great help in our study of Geography and History.

V In Geography the six grade pupils have been studying Africa, in history, they are now taking up the study of the Greeks.

VI For the correction of bad English habits we have a "good English" box. After a pupil has corrected his error he must submit the error to the box. At the end of the week he must state his error and make necessary corrections again.

VII The members of the fifth and sixth grades have organized a business club called the "Treasure Society."

VIII The pupils are quite enthusiastic over their correspondence to foreign countries. These countries include India, South America, South Africa, Ireland, Alaska, Canada, and Europe.

It was noted that a membership drive be held by the school children. The room securing the most members was to receive a prize of one dollar, the next a prize of seventy-five cents.

On Wednesday evening Nov. 18, the rabbit supper was held at the school building. About two hundred people were served.

The president, Mrs. A. H. Crownover has been suffering from a severe heart attack. We sincerely hope she is on the road to rapid recovery.

FRENCH DESIGN CODE OF COLOR

PARIS (UP)—An international color code, designed to insure a uniformity of color all over the world for the first time, has been drawn up by French scientists after long research. Tens of thousands of copies of this code have been run off for use by chemists, botanists, dyers, textile manufacturers and paper-makers throughout the world. In the past there has been a certain amount of confusion between scientists and industrialists of different countries because of the impossibility of accurately defining varying shades of color.

The new international code, which includes some 720 shades printed beside written explanations in various languages, is designed to solve that problem.

NEW GRANDEUR CLOAKS CAPITAL AS 7-YEAR EXPANSION PROGRAM CREATES GOVERNMENT TRIANGLE

Mature Beauty Intended by Founder at Last Obtained in Washington, D. C.; Emergency Buildings Razed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(UP)—The national capital today reveals the mature beauty intended by its founders in the 18th century, as construction projects and park plans are being rushed to completion in advance of Congress opening.

Seven years of desolation were accompanied by steady progress toward realization of the plans for a monumental city conceived long ago when the French landscape architect L'Enfant, inspired by the parks at Versailles, counseled George Washington.

A Federal buildings program started before the New Deal, Civil Works project, and the urgent necessity of housing an enlarged government business kept this city from stagnation in years of national depression, and brought it to new grandeur as the country approaches a period of relative prosperity.

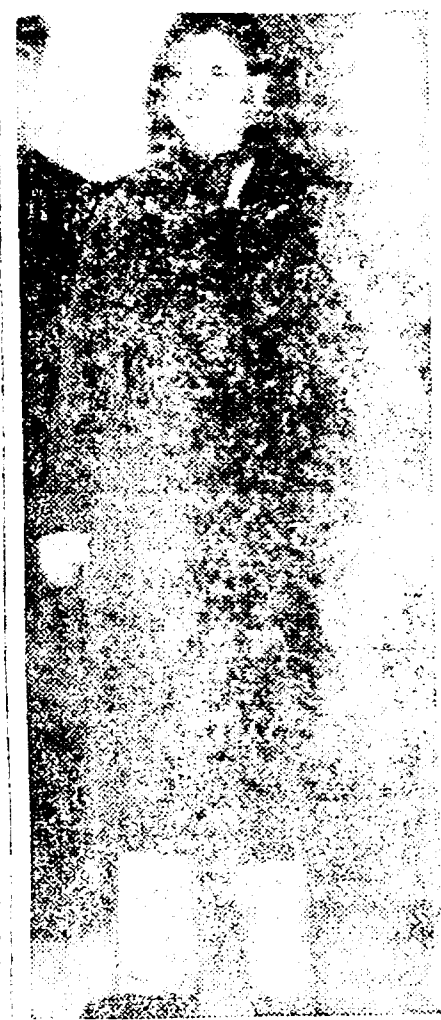

The year 1936 with the re-election of President Roosevelt meant for Washington the assured security of 100,000 Federal jobs.

Truly World Capital

The one-time "country town" on the Potomac now is frequently commented upon by foreign observers, and pictured by European photographers as truly a world capital, inviting comparison with other great governmental cities. Its French antecedents received striking reminder in November when a memorial bench in Rock Creek Park was dedicated to Jules Jusserand, distinguished ambassador here in the period of the World War.

The past year saw virtual completion of the huge block of departmental buildings in the "Triangle," bounded by Pennsylvania Avenue, the Mall, and Fourteenth Street. At the apex of this triangle stands the huge Greek filing-cabinet known as the Archives Building.

On the south side of the Mall, 600 feet in width and two miles long, carpenters and masons worked through the year on expansion of the Department of Agriculture. A one-time small brick building has grown during the depression into a large marble administration building, connected by bridges across a street to "South Building," said to be the largest office building in the world.

Old Avenue Dimmed

Pennsylvania Avenue, famed "Street of Parades," has lost this distinction to the new Construction Avenue, which runs beside the Mall, flanked by the Archives Building, Department of Justice, Postoffice Department, Labor Department, and Commerce.

One side of the historic Pennsylvania Avenue is now lined entirely by government buildings or parks, while the other side has changed strangely, with the disappearance of many old commercial buildings and hotels.

Capitol Hill also has undergone a metamorphosis in the last seven years and only in 1936 arrived at a stage of architectural and parkscape completeness.

Facing the Capitol across a architects, as the Mall has been virtually cleared. From the Capitol granite stairs there is an unobstructed view to the Lincoln Memorial, intercepted only by the narrow 555-foot shaft of the new afoot to construct a $3,000,000 Washington Monument. A plan is on foot to Thomas Jefferson in the vicinity of the Mall.

In front of the Capitol at this season is the ceremonial speakers stand built for use at the inauguration ceremonies on Jan. 20. Weather permitting, a crowd of 150,000 or more will assemble for the inauguration ceremony, the first held in mid-winter. The 20th Amendment to the Constitution, effective Feb. 6, 1933, changed the older date of March.

Diplomatic sections of Washington, no less than political, have changed rapidly in seven years. Massachusetts Avenue and Upper 16th Street still are rival neighborhoods for diplomatic favor. British, Japanese, Chilean, Brazilian and Austrian establishments had east their lot with the newer Massachusetts district, but the Italian, Mexican, Cuban, and Polish Embassies, and the chancery of the French still uphold the prestige of 16th Street.

SUPREME COURT TO REVIEW TWO BEER SIGN ACTS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17.—(UP)—The state supreme court today agreed to review the decision of two Franklin county courts in granting a permanent injunction against the state liquor board preventing it from enforcing a regulation prohibiting the erection of outside advertising signs on the premises of liquor permit holders.

The liquor board was enjoined from enforcing a regulation prohibiting outside signs advertising a particular brand of beer or intoxicating liquor by Franklin county common pleas court when John W. Coady, Columbus, permit-holder, brought suit to prevent enforcement of the action. The appellate court upheld the decision.

No date was set for hearing the case on its merits.

Council voted Wednesday night to terminate a contract with Allen Thornton, Montclair avenue for the collection of garbage.

Members said Mr. Thornton asked to be released from his contract. He will be paid for the four months' service he has rendered. He was to receive $400 a year.

An application for the garbage collection was sent to council by E. L. Florence, Northridge road. Mr. Florence agreed to continue the garbage collection under the same regulations as Mr. Thornton. He said he had a place to feed the garbage and could dispose of all rubbish.

The application of Mr. Florence was referred to the health committee to determine whether or not the city wished to continue the service.

COUNCIL ORDERS THREE STREETS TO BE DRAINED

Watt, S. Pickaway, W. Mill

BRIDGE LIGHT NEEDED

$2,400 Still Due on Court
Street Reconstruction

Drainage improvements on Watt street, S. Pickaway street and W. Mill street were ordered by council Wednesday night and referred to the service committee, city engineer and service director.

Councilman Frank Baker reported Watt street between the first and second alleys east of Court street should be rebuilt to eliminate depressions. Frank Marion contended since this was a bad season of the year to start such work some sewers be installed to take care of storm water until better weather.

To Install Drains
Drains will be installed on W. Mill street just west of Court and on S. Pickaway street near Robinson's dairy.

Mr. Baker said he had conferred with local officials of the Gas Company about the extension of lines on N. Court street. The company declined to extend the mains, Mr. Baker said, as the expense would be too great for the number of customers.

Council was informed the Hargus creek bridge was nearing completion and lights should be purchased. Due to the number of globes broken on the N. Pickaway street bridge lights councilmen were in favor of an arc light over the new bridge. Mayor Graham said he had ordered the light over the old bridge moved to the new bridge temporarily. He said the light over the old structure was deceiving motorists.

Solicitor to Collect

Carl Leist, solicitor, was instructed by council to collect approximately $2,400 from the county due on the Court street reconstruction program.

BLACKBIRD PIE NOW HAS TWO RIVAL DISHES

TULSA, Okla. (UP) — Housewives of this city, who last year put crow meat on the nation's menu with tales of its palatability, today came forth with a new recommendation for jaded appetites—blackbirds.

The meat is described as especially pleasing in taste, being similar to duck. Tulsa cooks say it "goes well" either baked, fried or made into pies.

Here is a favorite recipe:
1.—Flour breasts, season with salt and pepper, and fry in fat until brown and tender.
2.—Place birds in baking dish, smother with parboiled onion rings; add one-half cup of boiling water for each 24 birds and bake in a 300-degree oven for one hour.
Gravy.—Boil bird legs until tender. Bone and chop meat. Take eight tablespoons of grease from baking pan, add one-half cup flour and stir until brown. Add broth from cooked legs until gravy is of desired consistency. Season with salt and pepper. Add chopped meat.
For the rest of the menu, cooks suggest the following: potatoes, cabbage salad, lemon ice and sponge cake.

AUTOISTS' RESPONSIBILITY

EVERY owner or driver of an automobile has a keen interest in a decision handed down by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. It was held that they are responsible for accidents resulting from blowouts or from other flaws or defects in their machines. The case came up from Pittsburgh, where a man had been awarded $7500 damages resulting from his automobile being struck by another car on which a tire blew out. In his opinion, Chief Justice Kephart wrote:

"Drivers and owners of motor vehicles must know the condition of parts which are likely to become dangerous where the flaws or faults would be disclosed by reasonable inspection."

Inspection might show some defects in the working parts of a car; but it has always been deemed almost impossible to foretell when a tire would blow out. However, the decision may result in more care of the condition of their cars by those who have proper regard for the rights and safety of others as well as themselves.

BUSINESS LEADS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT need not worry as to the part to be taken by American business men in the movement for re-employment. Such leadership is certain to be maintained throughout the industrial order.

For one thing, business men know that mass purchasing power is the one factor capable of bringing economic improvement.

Then too, these same business men are aware of the fact that public spending, with its inevitable effect upon taxation, can be reduced only when there is no longer any need for huge relief allotments.

American business has a vital stake in recovery. It is certain to make any and every move that gives promise of speeding the wheels of industry and putting earned dollars in the pocket of the average citizen.

Any other course would be economically suicidal. And there is nothing to indicate that those at the helm of production and marketing are desirous of wiping themselves off the face of the earth.

Things seem strangely peaceful from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the Canadian border to the Rio Grande. Not a dead cat has been thrown since November 3.

Strange world! A man who steals a purse is a thief; a man who steals ideas is just a shrewd competitor.

The late Huey Long left a quarter of a million, which he no doubt had intended to share before being called away.

In comparison with the current crop of European statesmen, the former Kaiser seems the epitome of discretion and common sense.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Washington has not yet begun to feel the full reaction from the federal government's campaign to reduce emergency relief expenditures.

It has not begun to do so because congress is not in session. From out in the "sticks" come advices that a terrific outcry is developing, with the cutting down of personnel in local areas. It has not gained much volume in the capital, however, due to lack of legislative lungpower on the "hill". I doubt that the administration will realize its proportions until lawmakers begin to arrive in considerable numbers, bringing news from their various constituencies of home folk.

LIQUIDATION OBJECTED TO
A quest asks:
"What's at the bottom of the furor against the progressive liquidation of WPA? — not to mention the liquidation of other huge emergency relief organizations?"

The answer is that they don't propose to be liquidated. It is a joke (if not a very funny one) that the central government plans to create a commission to do the liquidating.

A new commission — because already there are too many. WPA, for example, has GOT to reduce expenses.

It has not money enough, unless the incoming congress grants it a great deal more cash than seems probable, to keep it going at its set-ups, with small office forces respectively. Somehow each one of them subsequently proves to have the influence to hang on forever.

How much more blindly must the same rule necessarily apply to a perfectly enormous organization like WPA, with a staff of its own and a list of beneficiaries numbering up into the millions! — and with corresponding voting power!

DOESN'T WORK
It's the old story. Forty-eight individuals (states, that is to say), with 50 cents each, can't raise more than $24 to relieve their joint distress.

Therefore, acting jointly, they aim to raise what they need—$48. The administration is trying to get back to this basis — local responsibility.

Local responsibility naturally doesn't like it.

Local responsibility's thought is to get back to a 10-cent basis for itself, with a correspondingly higher percentage basis for each other locality—its own locality to benefit by the difference, on an average.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

ITALY OFFERS U. S. FREE GOODS

ROME—For a long time Cordell Hull had a hard time arousing the slightest sniff of interest in his trade treaties among the major countries of Europe. But now, suddenly, they are being taken seriously — though not for reasons Mr. Hull might entirely appreciate.

What the ex-Allied countries now see in the Hull treaties, put very simply, is a chance to pay their war debts.

And there is only one reason for this sudden surge of sentiment to pay what they once berated "Uncle Shylock" for even suggesting that they pay—namely, to get around the Johnson Act and borrow more money from the United States.

To this end some of the ex-Allied countries have pounced upon Mr. Hull's economic philosophy and put forward an excellent case for themselves.

Take the case of Italy. Discussions regarding an economic treaty between Italy and the United States have been going on for some time. In these the Italians have put up the very plausible idea that while they are anxious to pay their debts, they cannot pay in cash because of their scanty gold reserves, but they will pay in kind.

They will pay in shipments of Italian products to the United States and even by giving free services to American tourists, which the United States Government could sell, in turn, to the tourists and credit the sales to the Italian debt.

Mr. Hull has been an ardent advocate of the free flow of trade, the Italians point out, and here is an opportunity not only to put the Hull theory into practice, but to pay the Italian debt by so doing.

It can be made to sound very plausible.

FRANCE AND BRITAIN

France and Great Britain are known to entertain the same general ideas though there have been no official conversations. France already has a trade treaty with the United States covering a few minor commodities, but it could be expanded. The British have none.

One factor which increased talk of debt payment was President Roosevelt's warning that the stock market was being inflated by foreign investments. The franker British newspapers, anxious for closer Anglo-American relations in view of European war clouds, suggest that if foreigners can afford to invest in the United States, they can afford to pay debts.

Another important factor is Roosevelt's overwhelming re-election. The chanceries of Europe figure that Roosevelt is now in a position to scale debts to a point never before permitted by Congress—and this time get away with it.

This should be noted carefully. No where is there any thought, at any time, by anyone, that the debts should be paid in full. Even if the debts are to be paid in kind, Europe takes it for granted that there will be very drastic reductions.

BARE TREASURES

Mussolini's interest in war debts right now is need of cash. The Ethiopian war left him with a low treasury. He had to scrape close to the bottom. Now his armament bills are running up. Also, he needs cash to develop Abyssinia. A loan in the United States—once the Johnson Act was obviated—would do the trick.

The idea is to pay a little; then borrow a lot more.

Toe and Finger Nails Modified Parts of Skin

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE NAILS are regarded by comparative anatomists as modified parts of the skin. Just as the hair is, just as feathers and scales and claws are, in some cases, horns are. Sometimes a horny, warty growth will grow from the skin surface and be just as hard and tough as nails, so it is easy to see that the upper layer of the skin can be modified in this way.

If you examine a section of a nail cut across, you see that it does, indeed, rise directly from the skin itself, not from underneath the skin as it appears to on casual inspection. The groove from which the nail grows is simply a turned-in fold of the skin.

At the bottom of the groove certain cells from the corium of the skin become modified, and are known as the matrix, or mother of the nail. It is by continual division of the matrix cells that the nail grows forward.

The white crescent at the base of the nail, the lunula, is simply due to lessened translucency at that part. Some people do not have lunulae. Their presence or absence is of no significance to health, although some people think if you have them on the little finger it means a rich husband.

Spots Due to Air
The little white spots, known as gift spots, in the nails, are due to small collections of air in the interior of the nail substance.

The rate of growth of nails differs in different people, in different climates and in different seasons. The finger nails grow faster than the toe nails, and those on the right hand faster than those on the left.

The average growth of a nail is 20 1/2 inches a year. So we grow a little over 11 yards of nail a year all over our bodies. If the bone of an extremity is broken, the nails of that limb grow less rapidly than its mate—the toe or hand, as the case may be.

The nails respond to disease elsewhere in the body—just as the eye lacks luster and the hair falls out in some diseases, so do the nails in their growth. When general disease affects the body, the blood supply to the nail matrix is lessened, and the nutrition of the nail all across its growing edge is poor. Hence a transverse ridge indicating where the thinner nail occurs appears. These ridges were first described by Beau in 1870, and are known as "Beau's lines". They have even been observed after an attack of seasickness.

The Sherlock Holmes of the sick room sometimes astonishes his patient by saying before a question is asked: "I see you had a severe illness about two weeks ago." He has simply observed Beau's lines and calculated the growth of the nail. Elementary, my dear Watson.

Poems That Live
MORNING
The lark is up to meet the sun.
The bee is on the wing,
The ant her labor has begun.
The woods with music ring.
Shall birds and bees and ants be wise.

While I my moments waste?
Oh, let me with the morning rise.
And to my duties haste.
Why should I sleep till beams of morn

Their light and glory shed?
Immortal beings were not born
To waste their time in bed.

The BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN
COPYRIGHT, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Jack Reid, only witness to the murder of Sir Henry Severing in the chapel of his ancient Abbey, is a ne'er-do-well who has been posing as an itinerant painter. In the chapel to steal a jeweled cross, Reid could raise no alarm at the time of the murder. Richard Selden, questioned by Scotland Yard, questions Lady Hilda, the victim's widow, and Eric Colindale, agent for the estate who is in love with her. He also talks with Colonel Graham, a neighbor whose bloodhounds found the body of Sir Henry in the coffin of his father, and Mrs. Thornton, the housekeeper. Lady Hilda and Colindale are shocked by Sir Henry's will, which leaves everything to James, the butler, except an allowance for the children and the widow. PROVIDED she marries Colindale, who has fallen in love with Sylvia, a lawyer's governess. The two Severing children, determines to help Selden solve the murder when he learns her life and the children's are endangered. One of the mourners at Sir Henry's funeral, a Mrs. Holden, shows unusual interest in the Abbey. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 25
THE SUBSEQUENT movements of Mrs. Holden after the funeral would have interested and astonished many people. She drove to the Bull Inn and put her car into the garage, entering the garden by the back door from the garden. Hucks was standing in the hall, looking strange in his rusty black suit, worn as a mark of respect to the dead baronet.

Also he had been drinking deeply to drown the melancholy induced by the sad occasion.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Hucks." He turned round hurriedly and placed the glass he was holding on the hall-stand.

"I beg your pardon, miss, I didn't see you." He gave her a friendly smile, showing his irregular set of yellow teeth.

"What did you think of the show?" she said, smiling at the huge man roughly.

"Well, miss, funerals ain't much in my line—fair give me the creeps; but I felt it my duty to go."

"Quite right, but I expect you've seen many in your time. You must have had a wonderful life, Mr. Hucks."

"Not so bad, miss; ups and downs you know. And now I'm keeping a pub and doin' a bit of gardening."

The woman took a few steps up the stairs. "I've enjoyed myself very much here; it's a wonderful little village."

Hucks came to the edge of the staircase, looking up at the woman. "Come now, miss, you don't cod me. You didn't come here just to see the village. When I saw you on the day of the inquest I says to myself, 'She's a smart 'un, and too smart to be wasting time here.'"

"There's no use trying to hide things from you, Mr. Hucks, but you'll keep my secret, honor bright?"

Hucks made an old-world gesture with his wetted finger and his throat to express his utter secrecy.

"Well, as a matter of fact I am writing for the Daily Echo, and came down here to get some first-hand copy about the Abbey and this murder."

"Well, I'm darned! But look here, miss, you're safe with me, but I shouldn't go blabbing it about too much."

She laughed merrily. "It's only you—and we are now quite old friends."

Hucks scratched his large bullet head. "My missus thinks we're too much good friends. She was on at me for being too attentive to you. She says, 'That Miss Norton is no fit company for you, 'Ucks. She's a lady and you're a prize fighter.'"

"I'm sorry to have caused mischief," she said. "I shall be going away tomorrow; in fact, I think I had better go tonight."

"I shouldn't do that, miss. Wait till tomorrow." There was a look in the eye of the ex-prize fighter that amused Miss Norton. She skipped up the stairs to her room and locked the door. Then with a sigh of relief she took off her hat and furs and flung them into a chair, lit a cigarette and helped herself to a whiskey and soda.

She walked to the looking-glass and surveyed herself carefully and then broke into a merry laugh. Very carefully she removed a tight-fitting wig of black hair, and the face of Selden stared from the glass. For four whole days he had worn this disguise, for the art had been taught thoroughly at the "school", and amateur theatricals had been encouraged.

He seated himself on the bed and opened a dispatch case, taking up a note book in which he had entered the results of his inquiries. He took a fountain pen and proceeded to write:

1. Funeral. Passed off without incident. James not present, but was playing organ. Strange procedure. Library interesting—ad joins chapel and probably connection from there to organ loft, as in many college chapels. Must investigate. Panel—bellow. Would account for James coming in unseen.

2. Colindale going—probably row with Lady S.

3. Lawyer Livingstone—knows more of family than he will tell. Strange will—not all read. Query what James has been left?

4. Colonel Graham and Reid both at funeral—afterwards talking in court. Must call on both.

He was in the middle of his diary when a knock came at the door and he hastily donned his wig. One of Hucks' maids handed him an official-looking letter, and asked whether "she" would be taking dinner.

Selden got rid of the girl and eagerly tore the missive open. It was from Livingstone, forwarded to "Miss Norton" from Scotland Yard.

Dear Mr. Selden (it read),
As you are in charge of the investigations at the Abbey, I feel that it would be only right to inform you, in accordance with your request, of the probable amount that Sir Henry Severing left after the various bequests have been paid and the death duties settled. It is of course impossible to give more than an approximate figure, and that depends very much on the state of the stock market and other considerations, but from my knowledge of the affairs of my late client I should estimate that it will not fall short of the sum of £150,000. This sum, as you are probably aware by this time, has been left unconditionally to Mr. James Conolly, who has been for many years in Sir Henry's employ, and has been more of a friend and personal confidant than a butler.

As the will will be made public when it is proved, I think it is proper for me to inform you of this fact, but let me warn you that if the amount of the bequest causes you to have any suspicions of James being implicated in this crime, I can assure you that I think you are altogether wrong. In saying this, I am speaking without prejudice, and as much in your own interest as in that of James, for whom I have a high respect.

Faithfully yours,
J. Livingstone.

"Humph!" Selden exclaimed, as he locked the letter away. "That's a nice bouquet for Master James; and he has been managing the affairs of the dead baronet for years; and has actually written his letters for him."

He opened a compact and put a few touches to his face. "I don't wonder Hucks is trying a mild

What would be the upshot? Would the murderer be found and he go off again on his shameful existence without purpose or object until some slip placed him in the grip of the law and he sank deeper and deeper in the mire? Up till now he had not cared or even given a thought to the possibility, but in his mind he saw the picture here reading in the paper the story of his arrest and history of crime: Colonel Graham openly scornful, Colindale perhaps sympathetic. Selden openly gloating, perhaps having seen through him from the start; and then—Sylvia, reading the shameful story and perhaps crying a little, murmuring: "And this was the man I trusted!"

And but for an accident he might even now be in gaol, waiting trial on a capital charge if he had been caught in the chapel with the murdered man.

He shuddered at the gloomy thought, and viewed the dripping trees with a curious feeling of depression. Unusual to his buoyant nature. And what was to be the next move? For a moment a strong temptation to turn his back on the place and try to forget he had ever been here seized him; but then a bewildering force—the same he had felt when sitting in the courtyard the day before—seemed to grip him, compelling him against his will and judgment to stay and see it through.

Pickaway P. T. A. Enjoys Interesting Evening

Father-Mother Chorus Sings; Dr. Kerns Speaks

The third meeting of the year of the Pickaway township Parent-Teacher association was held Wednesday evening at the school. The fathers and mothers, under the leadership of Mrs. Paul McGinnis, were in charge of the program, which follows: songs, "Jingle Bells," and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," by the fathers and mothers chorus; high school orchestra numbers, "Minuet in E Flat"—Mozart, "Ballet Music from Rosamunde," Schubert, and "Hungarian Dance, Number 5," Brahms; readings, "The Down Hill Road," and "Good Old Santa Story," by Mrs. E. E. Porter; solos, "Christmas Bells," and "Sweet Song of Long Ago," sung by Mrs. Cliff Miller, accompanied by Hunter Chambers; monologue, "The County Track Meet," by Mrs. G. D. In his talk "Health Activities," Dr. Kerns gave a history of the Christmas Seals which have been on sale for the last few days, and explained the manner in which the money derived from this sale is used in Pickaway County. The money obtained last year was spent in securing 29 pairs of glasses, paying for 20 tons of coal, 12 chest X-rays, and for a film "Contracts," which was shown at local theaters.

Mrs. Ralph Head, who is in charge of the Christmas Seal sale in Pickaway township, reported that the school had "gone over the top" by selling even more than its quota, which was set at $15.

Sandwiches and coffee were served at the close of the meeting.

ISN'T THIS a stunning suit?

It combines a plaid with solid color, and trims up the whole thing with rich looking beaver fur.

The skirt is a slim model in black wool. The princess jacket is Scotch plaid with mammoth revers, pocket and collar of beaver. The skirt of the jacket has a gay flare.

A pert black hat, gloves and pumps are the accessories, all worn by pretty Patricia Ellis, of the screen.

ESSE OWENS TO RUN AS PROFESSIONAL AGAINST RACE HORSE IN CUBA

CONTRACT CALLS FOR SPEED TEST ON DECEMBER 26

National Sports Festival in Havana to be Scene of New Contest

NEGRO TO ENTER FILMS
Cleveland Olympic Star May Return to School

CLEVELAND, Dec. 17 — (UP) — The amateur athletic career of Jesse Owens, Olympic triple winner, will end on Dec. 26 when he makes his first appearance as a professional runner at Havana, Cuba.

Jesse's New York manager, Marty Forkins, signed a contract yesterday with Carlos Henriquez, Cuban sports commissioner, for Owens to run 100 meters against a race horse on Dec. 26 and 27 as part of the Cuban national sport festival to be held in Havana during Christmas week.

Owens was pleased today with the contract that will void his amateur standing forever. "You can go only so far as an amateur," he said. "I'm only a poor boy, and now I'm trying to capitalize on my ability to earn some money and do things I've always wanted to do."

Talking about racing a horse, Owens said: "I'm counting on that Cuban pony getting a bad start. The first 50 or 70 meters may be all right, but after that — I'm not predicting."

Owens plans to leave for Cuba next week. Within a week after his professional debut, Jesse said he probably will leave for Hollywood to begin work on a motion picture. Next fall he plans to return to Ohio State university to finish his senior year in the department of physical education. But he will not be able to compete for Ohio.

Ohio State Swimmers Prepare for Contests

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17 — Faced with the most ambitious schedule attempted by an Ohio State University swimming team since the innovation of the sport six years ago, and with only 10 lettermen of varying abilities to carry on, Coach Mike Peppe is busy fashioning some of the best performers of last year's freshman team into varsity material.

The schedule calls for a meet in the natatorium, January 16, with Oberlin; Feb. 6 with the Ohio freshman team; and Feb. 20, with the University of Michigan.

The team will then take to the road for the remainder of the season, which includes meets with Michigan on Feb. 22; Illinois, Feb. 26; Purdue, Feb. 27; Northwestern, March 3; the Big Ten meet, at Indiana, March 13; and the National Intercollegiate championships, at Minnesota, March 27.

This year's group of free style performers is much better than last year, with Bob Johnson, Ravenna, Bill Howell, Hamilton, Captain Dexter Woodford, Akron, Fred Brandt and Reggie Kaithern, Portsmouth, Ray Kessler, Dayton, and John Hartlein, Lakewood, swimming the various events on the free style program.

The backstroke will be well taken care of with Dick Smith, Erie, Pa., of last year's varsity team, and Bill Neunzig, Dayton, national title-holder, swimming the 150-yard event. Bob Pfeiffer, Columbus, a dependable performer, will also see much action.

Dave Gustafson, Columbus, A. McKee, Dayton, and Earl Chessler, Elyria, are in a three-way fight for the two positions open in the 200-yard breaststroke event, and as a result of the competition are much improved over last year.

The Big Ten champion, Jim Patterson, Columbus, is back to do his share in the diving ranks, and will be aided by Chalmers Hixon, Dayton, a veteran from last year.

CORNELL GETS SCHOLAR FUND FOR ATHLETES

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 17 — (UP) — Cornell University will receive approximately $100,000 to provide athletic scholarships because a 72-year-old woman liked sports. Fascination that's never outgrown

YOU will find, in countless American homes on Christmas morning, eloquent evidence of the place railroads and railroading hold in the hearts of folks throughout our land. In the memory of oldsters still living, the railroads completed the bold and romantic enterprise of binding the nation together with bands of steel from the Atlantic to the Pacific. And by their enterprise today, the railroads continue to challenge the interest and stir the imagination of youngsters born and raised in an age of wonders.

Just as electricity has replaced the key and clockworks in many toy trains which gladden homes where they have a place under the Christmas tree—constant innovations contribute to the advancement of the nation's transportation and travel by rail.

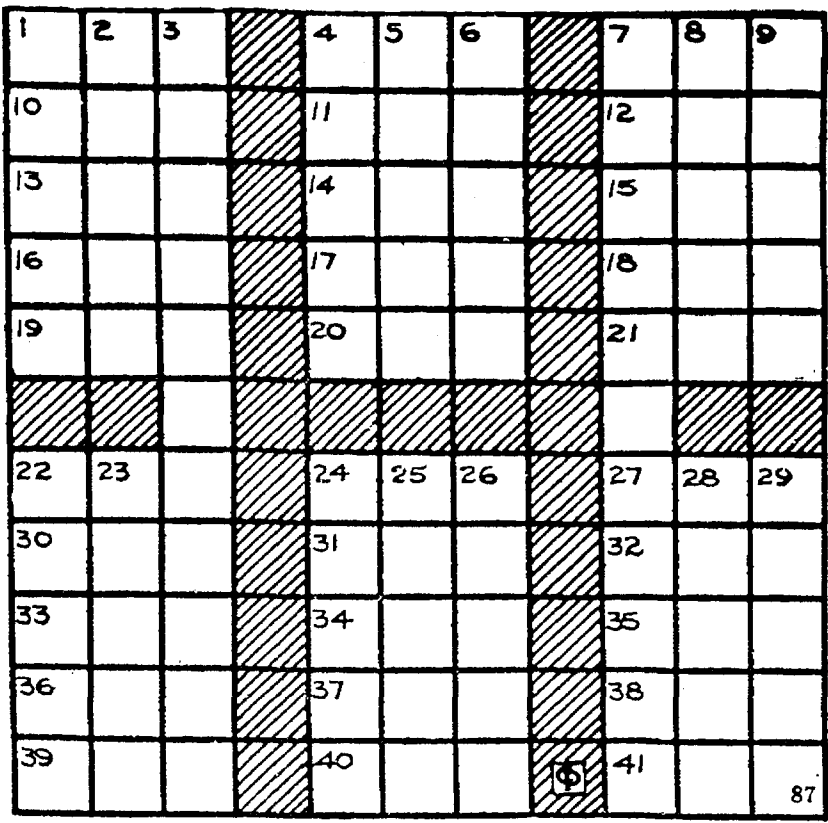

You can doubtless name the more dramatic evidences of enterprise on the Norfolk and Western—air-conditioning, luxury coaches, giant locomotives, construction of new branch lines, store-door pick-up and delivery, express-like schedules for freight trains, etc., yet these are only the obvious symbols of a vastly greater program of betterments which move forward every day and every year.

Take a single example. During the past six years—1930 to 1935, inclusive—the Norfolk and Western has expended approximately $15,400,000 for the laying of heavier rails, which are indispensable to the faster schedules maintained today for both passengers and freight with a safety record that is outstanding.

If you want to know more about how the pioneering spirit of the American railroads has increased the comfort, the satisfaction, and the economy of travel, we offer a friendly suggestion: Next time you take a trip, for business or pleasure, go by the N. & W.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

CONTRACT BRIDGE

SMART COUNTER STRATEGY

CAREFUL study of a hand often discloses a feature so important that it appears odd that any able player could have missed it in actual bid or play. We have such a case today, called to my attention by Mr. Robert P. Nelson, of Brooklyn.

Here are the facts. South made a dealer's bid of 1-Club. In turn this was overcalled with West's 1-Diamond, North's 1-Heart and East's 1-Spade. In the end East played the deal at 3-Spades, which no ordinary strategy could defeat.

- ♠ 7 3
♥ A Q 6 5 4
♦ 8 7 5
♣ 8 4 3
- ♠ K Q J 10
♥ K 10 3
♦ A 3
♣ J 9 7
- ♠ A 5 4
♦ 9 8 4
♣ A K Q 6 5

Having solid tops in clubs, and being uncertain how good partner's hearts might be, South led his Q of clubs. When North played his lowest missing club, South led the 9 of hearts, hoping to have partner win two tricks in that suit, or that partner might win one trick and that South might ruff a later round of that suit, if only North would win the second round of hearts, after South had gained entry with his top trump. Two club tricks, one heart trick, the top trump and a ruff would defeat the contract a trick.

The defensive strategy was plain to both North and East, as admitted later by both, but declarer saw no way of avoiding going down a trick. When dummy played low, so did North, feeling that his partner had led a doubleton, not a singleton. East's 10 won the trick. Seeing no way out, declarer led his lowest trump. South thought that his partner might win the trick, so South played low. Dummy's 8 won. The declarer became afraid to pull trump, fearing to lose three club tricks, so he led the 10 of clubs and overtook with the J, as if he also held only two of that suit. South's K won the trick.

South led his last heart. North's Ace won. Another heart was led and ruffed by South, defeating the contract a trick, as South still had his Ace of trumps to take the fifth defensive trick.

As Mr. Nelson saw, East had two chances to make his contract. He should have noted that one hope, and tried it. The first chance declarer had to make his bid was when he won the second trick with the 10 of hearts. He could have done this by at once leading his Ace of diamonds, followed by his 3. Dummy then would have won two added diamond tricks. On the last of which East could have discarded a heart. Then both declarer and South could ruff a third round of hearts, insuring the contract. The second chance declarer had was when South did not at once win his high spade trick. Even then declarer could have made his diamond play, insuring 3-odd. East was asleep.

ENGINEER HIRED TO PLAN DISPOSAL PLANT

SEWAGE WASTES TO BE STUDIED AS FIRST STEP

Needs of City to Handle Various Refuse to be Listed in Report

COURTRIGHT TO ASSIST

Attitudes of Many Factory Officials to be Sought

All preliminary work for the construction of the new sewage disposal plant will be completed within the next two months under a contract made Wednesday night by councilmen with Floyd G. Browne, sanitary engineer at Marion, O.

Reports on preliminary investigations to be made by Mr. Browne are to be submitted to council in not less than 35 nor more than 60 working days.

A resolution adopted by council, authorizing the service director to employ Mr. Browne, divided the sewage plant construction into three major steps, namely, the preparation of a report and recommendations, the making of a design, and the actual construction of the plant and placing it in operation. The contract made with Mr. Browne covers the first engineering step.

To Analyze Wastes

Mr. Browne will determine and analyze the various types of sewage wastes in the city, learn the needs of the city to handle the various types of wastes, assist in the location of the plant and making an application for federal aid, and do all preliminary work necessary in selecting the type of plant suitable for the city.

His duties are listed in the resolution as follows: "To make a comprehensive engineering report on the treatment of municipal wastes of the city of Cincinnati. The report shall include preliminary studies and investigations; the collection of data on the volume and strength of the municipal and industrial wastes; indicating and discussing with the city officials practicable methods of treating sewage and wastes adapted to local needs; preparation of sewage plant layouts, showing advantages and disadvantages of the types of plants considered; location of suitable plant sites; estimates of the costs of construction and operation of the various types of sewage treatment works under consideration; indicating the discussing methods of financing the cost of construction and operation of the sewage treatment works, and other pertinent data and information including recommendations and conclusions. The report shall be approved by the State Department of Health."

To Employ Courtright

Mr. Browne is to use the services of Davis S. Courtright, city engineer, in the preparation of the data. Mr. Browne is to receive $400 for his report, subject to deductions of $8 per day for services of the city engineer. The services of the city engineer are not to exceed $200.

The engineer will contact officials of various industrial plants to learn the attitudes of the companies toward the plant construction.

Council's session, scheduled to open at 7:30 p. m., did not begin until an hour later as councilmen went into a "huddle" to consider the resolution before it was read in the open meeting.

Bitter Personal Clashes Precede Vote in House Wednesday Evening

Lose Federal Money

Rep. William M. Boyd, D., Cuyahoga, author of the unemployment bill as it passed the house Jan. 16, pointed out that unless the house accepted the bill, Ohio would lose approximately $12,000,000 in payroll taxes imposed by the federal government. He said technical errors could be corrected by the next legislature.

The bitter debate finally was closed when Rep. Lawrence A. Kane, R., Hamilton, made a motion that brought the bill to a vote. Voting in favor were 49 Democrats and 43 Republicans, with 15 Republicans and four Democrats opposing passage. After the session closed, however, it was officially announced that the vote was 94 to 17, due apparently, to two "switched" votes.

Voting against the bill were J. Harry Asmann, R., Hamilton; R. R. Bangham, R., Clinton A. Christy, D., Monroe; Edmond H. Deibel, R., Medina; A. Lee Fair, D., Holmes; Newton H. Fairbanks, R., Clark.

Amendments Delayed

Action on the tax program, including bills to extend the sales, "use", liquid fuel, cigarette, and admission taxes, was postponed until today after it was learned taxation committee amendments were not available.

Rep. Fred Mourey, R., Summit, warned that any efforts to push through the program without serious consideration might result in its defeat.

Bitter fight to defeat the 60-40 method of distribution of sales tax funds to schools and local governments was anticipated. Under these provisions, the schools would receive only about $22,000,000 from the sales tax, whereas education officials insist they need a minimum of $26,000,000 from this source in 1937.

At a caucus of Republican members-elect to the new house, Rep. William M. McCulloch, R., Miami, was unanimously chosen floor leader.

The caucus, attended by 31 of the 33 Republicans who will serve in the house next year, also elected Rep. J. Harry McGregor, Coshocton, as party whip and assistant minority floor leader, Rep. Arthur Hamilton, Warren, president.

caromed off into the precipitous cleft of the mountain," Hess said. Hess will lead his men back over the same trail today and another party will come up from Draper on the other side, which the first party could not reach and where Hess believes the plane would have crashed.

The terrain around the peak was only high rocky cliffs with few trees. Around it are peaks ranging from 7,000 to 12,000 feet with narrow canyons between that drop almost straight to jagged floors.

It is a desolate country. No houses are visible once Alpine and the Utah Lake valley are left behind. The only grazing land is at the extreme foot of cliffs. Snow in the canyons is very deep, forest rangers say.

George Keyser, who led a ski-equipped party from Brighton in the Big Cottonwood canyon toward Alta yesterday, was ready to start again today. Rain and snow prevented their reaching Alta, high lookout from which miles and miles of the Wasatch range are visible.
